

President's Message

Welcome to May-August 2017 Issue

Mohammed Rahmatullah

University of Development Alternative

It is heartening that the Asian Journal of Pharmacognosy is publishing its second issue. The Journal is published by the Asian Society of Pharmacognosy and focuses on papers dealing with medicinal uses and properties of the vast plant resources of the Asian continent. It is the objective of the Journal to publish papers, notes, case reports and reviews from every country of Asia; however more attention is given to the underdeveloped countries, which in reality have more medicinal plant resources, but scientists from which countries often lack publication funds. Thus, a vast amount of scientific and indigenous medicinal knowledge remains to be published and is getting lost with every passing day. This issue deals with important but less or not reported medicinal plants of Bangladesh, and on behalf of the Society and the Journal I request scientists from other countries to contribute in the future issues and make the Journal and the Society a success.
